

Contents

Notes on Contributors	vii
Acknowledgments	xi
A Word on the Text	xiii

Introduction: On Collaboration Seth Whidden	1
---	---

COLLABORATION BEFORE THE REVOLUTION

1 How Often Did Authors Write Alone?: Ways of Becoming an Author in Early Modern France Joan DeJean	19
2 “Le Dîner des philosophes”: Conviviality and Collaboration in the French Enlightenment John R. Iverson	25

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY: A LONG CENTURY OF COLLABORATION

3 Collaboration and Solidarity: The Collective Strategies of the Romantic Cenacle Anthony Glinoe	37
4 Smooth Collaboration: Vitalism and Judaism in Erckmann-Chatrian’s L’Ami Fritz Julia Przybos	55
5 Sharing One’s Death: Le Tombeau de Théophile Gautier (1873) Pascal Durand	67
6 Poetry in Collaboration in the 1870s: The Cercle Zutique, “Le Fleuve” and “The Raven” Seth Whidden	77
7 Erasing Collaboration: The Case of André Gill and Louis de Gramont Joseph Acquisto	91

8	The Médan Group and the Campaign of Naturalism Jennifer K. Wolter	107
9	From Illustration to Decoration: Maurice Denis's Illustrations for Paul Verlaine and André Gide Frédéric Canovas	121
10	A Collective Experiment in Literary Journalism: The Case of La Revue Wagnérienne Pamela A. Genova	137
11	Rhyparographers: Les Frères Goncourt and Monstrous Writing Lawrence R. Schehr	153
THE TWENTIETH CENTURY: COLLABORATION AND MODERNISM
12	Belgian, Modernist, and Avant-garde Literary Journals from the Early 1920s: A Model for Network Collaboration Daphné de Marneffe	169
	Index	185