ASHGATE  www.ashgate.com/legalreference
Ashgate’s renowned multi-volume reprint reference series in law constitute a major resource for law libraries, students and researchers and are aimed at undergraduate, postgraduate and research student levels.

Each series is edited by a renowned expert in the field who selects the most significant published journal essays in the subject, and contributes an introduction which presents an overview of the most important issues. The essays are reproduced in full in their original format using the facsimile method to facilitate easy and correct citation of the original essays.

The unique benefit of these reference volumes is that they bring together the best of previously published research essays and articles in a specific subject area within the field of law from a wide range of international sources which would otherwise be time-consuming, difficult and expensive to access. Students are therefore able to study influential essays side-by-side whilst lecturers are provided with an invaluable ‘one-stop’ teaching resource.

The International Library of Essays on Capital Punishment, Volume 1
Justice and Legal Issues
Edited by Peter Hodgkinson, Westminster University, UK

This volume provides up-to-date and nuanced analysis across a wide spectrum of capital punishment issues. The essays move beyond the conventional legal approach and propose fresh perspectives, including a unique critique of the abolition sector. Written by a range of leading experts with diverse geographical, methodological and conceptual approaches, the essays in this volume challenge received wisdom and embrace a holistic understanding of capital punishment based on practical experience and empirical data.

Includes 24 previously published journal articles

Hardback 978-1-4094-6136-4 £160.00 $300.00
www.ashgate.com/isbn/9781409461367

The essays selected for this volume develop conventional abolition discourse and explore the conceptual framework through which abolition is understood and posited. Of particular interest is the attention given to an integral but often forgotten element of the abolition debate: alternatives to capital punishment. The volume also provides an account of strategies employed by the abolition community which challenges tired methodologies and offers a level of transparency previously unseen.

Abolition and Alternatives to Capital Punishment
Edited by Peter Hodgkinson, University of Westminster, UK

This volume provides analyses of a range of subjects and issues in the death penalty debate, from medicine to the media. The essays address in particular the personal complexities of those involved, a fundamental part of the subject usually overridden by the theoretical and legal aspects of the debate. Additionally, the international range of the analysis, enabling disaggregation of country specific motivations, ensures the complexities of the death penalty are also considered from a global perspective.

The International Library of Essays on Capital Punishment, Volume 3
Policy and Governance
Edited by Peter Hodgkinson, University of Westminster, UK

This collection of reprinted essays provides a unique and illuminating view of the complexity of capital punishment discourse. The essays are broad in their geographical focus and expand on the linear legal analysis which usually pervades the capital punishment landscape. Expert contributors offer innovative approaches and in-depth analyses of specificities and highlight the importance of refining the debate. This international collection supplies a genuinely fresh perspective on capital punishment issues and is essential reading for lecturers, students and researchers interested in advancing their knowledge of the death penalty.

The three volumes in this series are:
• Volume 1: Justice and Legal Issues
• Volume 2: Abolition and Alternatives to Capital Punishment
• Volume 3: Policy and Governance

Human Trafficking
Edited by Marie Segrave, Monash University, Australia

The essays selected for this volume reflect four key areas of debate: the transnational organized crime framework; the data and research landscape; the implementation of anti-trafficking responses; and the articulation of alternative responses to human trafficking. These essays are written by both well known and more recent contributors to this field of research. The collection draws attention to contemporary arguments as well as recent empirical research, and points to the importance of contextualizing human trafficking within both the global and local setting.

Social Learning Theories of Crime
Edited by Christine S. Sellers, University of South Florida, USA, L. Thomas Winfree, Jr New Mexico State University, USA and Ronald L. Akers, University of Florida, USA

The readings selected for this volume reveal the historical development of social learning theory, from its origins to its further incorporation of social structure as the context within which criminal behavior is learned. The essays emphasize the theory’s foundations in both symbolic interactionism and behaviorism and reflect that at its core the theory remains true to its origins in sociology. The theory is also shown to be an explanation of the gamut of deviant behaviors ranging from gang activities to drug use and from coercive sex to terrorism.

Feminist Theories of Crime
Edited by Meda Chesney-Lind, University of Hawai’i at Manoa, USA and Merry Morash, Michigan State University, USA

This collection of essays re-imagines the field of criminology with insights gleaned from feminist theory. Factors such as gender, patriarchy and other systems of oppression such as race and class are highlighted as essential to an understanding of crime problems and the criminal justice system. The articles also reflect the feminist concern that all research should have the crucial goal of producing knowledge that will promote social justice.

SERIES
THE LIBRARY OF ESSAYS IN THEORETICAL CRIMINOLOGY
Series Editor: Stuart Henry, San Diego State University, USA

Criminological theory is a rapidly growing field within the discipline of criminology, which seeks to identify the causes or etiology of crime. While there are numerous criminological theories, most can be grouped into broad theoretical frameworks which are rooted in major academic disciplines, such as economics, anthropology, biology, psychology, geography, sociology, politics, history and philosophy, as well as the more recent multi-disciplinary fields such as gender studies, critical race studies and postmodernist social theory. However, criminological theories are rarely discrete and a major recent development in criminological theory has been the emergence of explicitly integrative theoretical approaches which draw on aspects of other disciplines to strengthen their explanatory power.

This series is designed to capture the range and depth of the key theoretical perspectives on crime causation for an international audience. Each volume is edited by a renowned criminologist and has as its theme a specific theoretical approach. The introduction to each volume provides a context to the history of ideas in the field and an overview of the papers selected. The series represents the state-of-the-art in research to better understand and explain crime and those who commit it, and provides an invaluable reference resource for libraries.

PIONEERS IN CONTEMPORARY CRIMINOLOGY
Series Editor: David Nelken, Cardiff University, UK, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK and University of Macerata, Italy

‘... the publishers, Ashgate, are to be constantly commended for not giving up on the anthology as a principal publishing form, and particularly for their commitment to showcasing collections of great scholarship in socio-legal studies...’

Current Issues in Criminal Justice
The titles in this series bring together the best published and unpublished work by the leading authorities in contemporary criminological theory. By drawing together articles from a wide range of journals, conference proceedings and books, each title makes readily available the authors’ most important writings on specific themes. The collected essays complement each other to give a retrospective view of the authors’ achievements and a picture of the development of criminology as a whole.

The Ashgate Research Companion to International Criminal Law

Critical Perspectives

Edited by William A. Schabas, Middlesex University, UK; Yvonne McDermott, Banger University, UK and Liam Hayes, Institute for International Criminal Investigations

‘An excellent collection of topical essays on many of the big issues arising in international criminal law. All have been written with great insight and provide a helpful and critical view of where we find ourselves sixteen years after Tadić.’

Steven Kay QC

This unique research companion takes a critical approach to a wide variety of theoretical, practical, legal and policy issues surrounding and underpinning the operation of international criminal law as applied by international criminal tribunals. The authors raise issues which are likely to provide the most significant challenges and most promising opportunities for the continuing development of this body of law.

THE LIBRARY OF ESSAYS ON INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS

Series Editor: Stephanie Farrior, Vermont Law School, USA

Although human rights were initially conceived as rights of the individual in relation to the state, there is growing recognition that human rights must also be respected in the international arena. This series brings together the most important and influential scholarship on issues around human rights in the area of international law.

The volumes include a wide range of essays selected from an international search of print and electronic content and feature a substantial introduction by the volume editor which provides an overview of the topic of each volume. The series includes foundational articles on the development of international human rights law, covers issues on the current challenges facing international human rights lawyers and scholars; the UN system of rights, regional human rights systems and the fundamental principles of equality and non-discrimination under international law.

The five volumes in this series are edited by leading scholars in the field and taken together provide an invaluable research tool for scholars and students interested in the growing field of international human rights.

The five volumes in this series are:

• Volume I: The Development of International Human Rights Law
• Volume II: Equality and Non-Discrimination under International Law
• Volume III: Challenges in International Human Rights Law
• Volume IV: The United Nations System for Protecting Human Rights
• Volume V: Regional Human Rights Systems

The Development of International Human Rights Law

Volume I
Edited by David Weissbrodt, Fionnuala D. Ni Aoláin and Mary Ramseyy all at University of Minnesota, USA

The essays selected for this volume encompass the development of human rights law from its philosophical underpinnings and address many of its current controversies. The introductory essay provides a roadmap of the collection’s major themes and traces the relationship between those themes. Taken together, the essays emphasize the legal underpinnings of the human rights regime and as such, the collection provides an essential, wide-ranging account of this important part of international law, procedure and practice.

Challenges in International Human Rights Law

Volume III
Edited by Menno T. Kamminga, Maastricht University, The Netherlands

This volume identifies and contributes to the mainstream challenges within international human rights law, such as transitional justice, non-state actors, terrorism and development, as well as to the wider and more systematic range of challenges such as justiciability of social and economic rights, extraterritoriality, health care and investment arbitration. The articles include both long-standing essays and more recently published material and are put into context by the specially commissioned introduction.

Citizenship Rights
Edited by Jo Shaw and Igor Stiks
both at University of Edinburgh, UK

This volume presents some of the most important reflections and studies on citizenship rights, both past and present. The contributions provide both thorough description and incisive analysis and place the question of citizenship rights into a wider historical, social and political perspective. As such, it offers a timelier introduction to the current debates surrounding the rights and duties of both citizens and non-citizens alike, with a focus on the many ways in which citizenship is contested in the contemporary world.

Environmental Rights
Edited by Steve Vanderheiden,
University of Colorado at Boulder, USA

The essays selected for this volume present critical viewpoints from the debate about the need to establish rights on behalf of greater environmental protection. The volume surveys a range of theories and approaches and captures the potential for and primary challenges to the development of rights as instruments for safeguarding the planet’s life-support capacities and as an avenue of recourse against ecological degradation, whether on behalf of human or nonhuman right holders.

Economic, Social and Cultural Rights
Edited by Manusi Ssenyonyi, Brunel University, UK

‘Any library featuring International Law would be incomplete without this handy collection of insightful essays by the key academics in the field.’

American Society of International Law Newsletter

This collection of seminal papers examines the legal, conceptual and practical questions relating to the international legal protection of economic, social and cultural rights. The volume is divided into three main parts: human rights obligations for states and non-state actors; analysis of selected substantive rights; and the justiciability of these rights in various contexts such as within the United Nations, Europe, Inter-American, and African systems, as well as within the domestic sphere.

Global Minority Rights
Edited by Joshua Castellino,
Middlesex University, UK

The essays collected together in this volume address questions concerning the rights of minorities and show the extent to which policy constructs (especially in law) have come to pay head to the need to include minorities in different domestic settings across the globe. The essays are organized under six main headings: historical development; conceptual development; contemporary challenges; fundamental norms of minority protection; specific rights of minorities; and human rights and minority rights.

THE LIBRARY OF ESSAYS ON EQUALITY AND ANTI-DISCRIMINATION LAW

Series Editor: Suzanne B. Goldberg, Columbia University, USA

This six-volume series offers an array of reprinted works that explore equality and anti-discrimination law with a focus on age, disability, gender, race, religion and sexuality. The selections are international in their range and include classic and hard-to-find works that capture each field’s defining issues. Each volume begins with an expert editor’s introductory essay that sketches the field’s landscape and highlights each selection’s particular contribution in ways that aid both newcomers to the field and experienced scholars seeking to enhance their knowledge. Through their collected wisdom the volumes spark new insights and benefit readers by making important works available for side-by-side review. The volumes’ bibliographies are also invaluable resources that reinforce the depth, breadth and fundamental importance of legal developments in these fields.

The six volumes in this series are:

• Age and Equality Law
• Disability and Equality Law
• Gender and Equality Law
• Race and Equality Law
• Religion and Equality Law
• Sexuality and Equality Law

Race and Equality Law
Edited by Angela P. Harris, University of California – Davis, King Hall School of Law, USA

This collection of essays employs an analytic approach developed in the United States which sheds light on the workings of race in political–legal systems as diverse as South Africa, New Zealand, France and Latin and South America. The essays reveal how legal rules define race so narrowly and make racial discrimination so difficult to prove, that inequality persists despite its symbolic extinction.

ASHGATE
The establishment of the World Trade Organization in 1995 has transformed international trade law and policy from a niche interest into a core stream of international law. This is reflected in the stream of high quality academic writings on the topic, many of which have been influential in the practice of trade law in government departments and at the WTO. This series collects the very best of these, as well as seminal articles from the GATT period which set the foundation for the modern international trade regime.

The four volumes in this series, each edited by acknowledged experts in their respective fields, cover the core aspects of international trade law and policy. Detailed introductions to each volume highlight the main issues addressed in the selected contributions, and in addition explore different perspectives, accompanied by references to other writings in the field.

This series makes readily available the best writings on international trade law and policy over the past six decades. It is an indispensable resource for all those interested in understanding the intellectual assumptions on which trade law is predicated, its most important controversies, and its broader policy implications.

The four volumes in this series are:

- Volume I: Institutional Aspects of International Trade Law
- Volume II: The Regulation of Goods
- Volume III: The Regulation of Services and Intellectual Property
- Volume IV: The Challenges of Trade Law

Institutional Aspects of International Trade Law

Volume I

Edited by Tomer Broude, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel and Michelle Ratto and Sanchez Badin, FGV Sao Paulo School of Law (Direito GV), Brazil

The importance of the institutional dimensions to international trade law over the last decades is brought to light in this volume of previously published articles. The collection addresses many diverse and significant issues and focuses on the World Trade Organization (WTO), which is revealed here as a dynamic, multi-layered and complex institutional structure. The combined strengths of the articles in the collection make this volume of special importance to students and practitioners of international trade or international relations.

The Regulation of Goods

Volume II

Edited by Lorand Bartels, University of Cambridge, UK and Federico Ortino, King’s College London, UK

International rules on trade in goods are at the core of the multilateral trading system and have been influential in all areas of trade law. Accompanied by a detailed introduction by the editors, this volume contains essays representing the very best academic writing in six decades of international trade law and policy, ranging from seminal analyses of the core non-discrimination principles to explorations of areas that are still evolving.

The Regulation of Services and Intellectual Property

Volume III

Edited by Markus Krajewski, University of Erlangen-Nuremberg, Germany and Bryan C. Mercurio, The Chinese University of Hong Kong, Hong Kong

International rules on trade in services and intellectual property are ‘new’ additions to the multilateral trading system, but both have played an important role in the system since their entry. Accompanied by a detailed introduction, this volume contains essays which cover not only the law and jurisprudence of these controversial topics but also the underlying economics and politics behind their incorporation into the multilateral system and continued prominence.

The Challenges of Trade Law

Volume IV

Edited by Tanis Voon, Andrew Mitchell and Glyn Ayres, all at the University of Melbourne, Australia

The essays selected for this volume offer significant contributions to the ongoing exploration of the intersection between, on the one hand, international trade law and, on the other hand, the overlapping spheres of the environment, development, labour, human rights, public morals, culture, competition, investment, and finance. The essays represent leading research from the period between 1998 and 2012 and are complemented by an introduction and bibliography providing further context and insights.

THE INTERNATIONAL LAW OF PEACE AND SECURITY

Series Editor: Nigel D. White, University of Nottingham, UK

The focus of this four volume series is on the law of peace and how international law underpins and helps to achieve the conditions of peace and security between states.

In times of peace the main fear is of sudden attack, with current concern directed to weapons of mass destruction and terrorism. The selected essays consider the applicability of a range of laws such as anti-terrorism laws, arms control laws and measures to prohibit the use of force. In post-conflict situations where peace is usually restored with the involvement of international actors, the articles reveal a whole host of legal issues in connection with the applicability of human rights law within unstable post-conflict states, as well as the principles governing international intervention and involvement. A thread that runs through all the areas addressed in this series is the role, function and importance of the Security Council as principal guarantor and guardian of international peace and security.

This four volume series, which focuses on international laws concerning peace and security, presents a selection of important articles on key issues written by leading academics and is an invaluable resource for academics in the field of international law and political science.

The four volumes in this series are:

- Arms Control Law
- Counter-Terrorism and International Law
- Post-Conflict Building and International Law
- The Use of Force in International Law

Arms Control Law

Edited by Daniel H. Joyner, University of Alabama, USA

This volume features a selection of the best scholarship on international law as it is relevant to the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. The essays consider the nonproliferation legal regime as a normative system and offer a more discrete consideration of international law in each weapons of mass destruction technology area. The role, authority and track record of the UN Security Council in this area are also evaluated.

Counter-Terrorism and International Law

Edited by Katja L.H. Samuel and Nigel D. White, both at Nottingham University, UK

This volume considers the problem of international terrorism from an international legal perspective. The articles address the issue of how to reach an agreement on what constitutes terrorism as well as the range of responses to terrorism, from criminalising and punishing various manifestations of terrorism, to more coercive, executive-led responses. Finally, the articles consider the role of the Security Council in developing legal regimes to combat terrorism.

Globalization and Common Responsibilities of States
Edited by Koen De Feyter,
University of Antwerp, Belgium

There is a growing awareness that international law insufficiently protects common global interests and that States and non-State actors need to work together to protect global aims. The focus of this book is on the different fields of international law where global cooperation is needed and on the legal developments which have taken place and which reflect a global set of values and interests independent of the interests of States.

The Conduct of Hostilities in International Humanitarian Law, Volume II

This volume features essays on the legal regime governing the use of force during armed conflicts, otherwise known as ‘Hague Law’ or ‘conduct of hostilities rules’. The articles reflect research into the theoretical and practical difficulties of maintaining humanitarian law’s delicate balancing of military necessity and humanitarian considerations in the face of evolving means and methods of warfare and competing perspectives as to how the balance is best achieved. Particular attention is paid to the principle of distinction. Also included are essays on the law governing warfare at sea and in the air.

ISLAMIC LAW
Series Editor: Mashhood A. Baderin, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, UK

Since 9/11 the increased global attention on Islam has also triggered an increased interest in Islamic law, and academic journals far and wide reflect the prolific nature of scholarly debate in this field. This series of three volumes brings together the best and most influential contributions from this debate and in so doing provides students and researchers with a ‘one-stop’ resource to help them navigate their way through the widely dispersed and varied literature on this subject.

The selected articles address different aspects of Islamic law and uniquely blend academic perspectives on the theoretical, substantive and practical elements of Islamic law in a coherent manner for a holistic understanding of the Islamic legal system in theory and practice. Each of the three volumes in the series also features an introductory overview and a comprehensive bibliographical list as an additional resource for further research on the different aspects of Islamic law. This series represents an indispensable resource for students and researchers with a ‘one-stop’ resource to help them navigate their way through the widely dispersed and varied literature on this subject.

The three volumes in this series are:

• Volume I: Islamic Legal Theory
• Volume II: Issues in Islamic Law
• Volume III: Islamic Law in Practice

Islamic Legal Theory
Volume I
Edited by Mashhood A. Baderin, SOAS, University of London, UK

This volume addresses the sources, methods and principles of Islamic law leading to an appreciation of the skills of independent jurist and legal reasoning necessary for deriving specific rulings from the established sources of the law. The articles engage critically with relevant traditional views to enable a diagnostic understanding of the different issues, covering both Sunni and Shi’i perspectives on some of the issues for comparison. The volume features an introductory overview of the subject as well as a comprehensive bibliography to aid further research.

The Ashgate Research Companion to Feminist Legal Theory
Edited by Margaret Davies, Flinders University, Australia and Vanessa Munro, University of Nottingham, UK

‘This wonderful collection provides a fitting tribute to the dynamism and diversity of contemporary feminist legal theory. Bringing together leading scholars, it achieves the admirable feat of simultaneously providing an authoritative and highly accessible introduction to a rich and evolving body of scholarship, whilst simultaneously advancing the field through numerous original insights. It deserves to be very widely read.’

Sally Sheldon, Kent Law School, UK

This Companion celebrates the strength of feminist legal thought, which is manifested in this dynamic combination of stability and change, as well as in the diversity of perspectives and methodologies, and the extensive range of subject-matters, which are now included within its ambit. Bringing together contributors from across a range of jurisdictions and legal traditions, the book provides a concise but critical review of existing theory in relation to the core issues or concepts that have animated, and continue to animate, feminism. It provides an authoritative and scholarly review of contemporary feminist legal thought, and contributes to the ongoing development of some of its new approaches, perspectives, and subject-matters.

Contributors include: Margaret Davies, Vanessa E. Munro, Rosemary Hunter, Joanne Conaghan, Nancy J. Hirschmann, Elisa Borthuyse, Sharon Cowan, Jennifer C. Nash, Sarah Song, Samia Bano, Margot Young, Diane Otto, Judith Gardam, Vanessa E. Munro, Marie Fox, Tracy Murphy, Susan B. Boyd, Rosemary Aucmuth, Anna Gunningham, Judy Fudge, Ann Stewart, Patricia Tulloh and Karen Morrow.

The Ashgate Research Companion to Islamic Law
Edited by Rudolph Peters, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands and Peri Beaman, Harvard University, USA

This Companion provides a comprehensive and authoritative guide to current research in the thriving area of Islamic law. A distinguished group of authors provide an overview of their particular specialty, reflect on past and current thinking and also point to directions for future research. The book presents classical Islamic law through a historiographical introduction to and analysis of the Western scholarship. The authors address key debates and provoke new ways of thinking about long-standing issues in this increasingly relevant and popular discipline.

Foundations of Dispute Resolution

Volume I
Edited by Carrie Menkel-Meadow, Georgetown University and University of California, USA

This volume brings together leading research articles in to the theory, research findings and applications of modern dispute resolution. The articles cover the primary processes of negotiation, mediation and arbitration, as well as exploring combinations and hybridization of these processes. The volume spans both the 'science' and 'art' of dispute resolution, considers the relationship of peace to justice and includes both empirical (descriptive) and normative (prescriptive) assessments of how these processes of dispute resolution function.

Philosophy and Theory of Law

NEW SERIES

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT: CRITICAL ESSAYS IN LEGAL PHILOSOPHY
Series Editor: Thom Brooks, University of Newcastle, UK

Crime and punishment are emotive issues which raise important and challenging questions. Can punishment be justified? If so, then what purpose does it have? Which practices best cohere with this purpose? These and many other questions are addressed by this series of five volumes which bring together classic articles written by leading international figures in the field. Each volume is organized thematically with a general introduction to provide an accessible overview of the latest research. The essays selected for inclusion are seminal works published in English and the series constitutes an invaluable reference resource for libraries, students, researchers and practitioners.

The five volumes in this series are:

• Deterrence
• Juvenile Offending
• Retribution
• Sentencing
• Shame Punishment

For more information on this series please visit www.ashgate.com/candp

Deterrence
Edited by Thom Brooks, University of Durham, UK

Deterrence is a theory which claims that punishment is justified through preventing future crimes, and is one of the oldest and most powerful theories about punishment. This volume brings together the leading work on deterrence from the dominant international figures in the field. Deterrence is examined from various critical perspectives including: its diversity, relation with desert, the role of deterrence with incapacitation and prevention, and the role deterrence has played in debates over the death penalty and deterrence and corporate crime.

Edited by Larry May and Paul Morrow, both at Vanderbilt University, USA

This collection of essays brings together the very best philosophical and legal writings on procedural justice over the last half century. The articles analyze values such as transparency, predictability and even-handedness in law-making, law-enforcement and adjudication; discuss core concepts in Anglo-American jurisprudence such as equal protection, due process and the rule of law; and deal with the distinctive branch of justice that involves norms and processes of applying law to citizens.

Theories of Justice
Edited by Tom Campbell, Charles Sturt University, Australia and Alejandra Mancilla, Australian National University, Australia

This volume of essays provides a general overview of the main strands in contemporary early justice theorising and features the most important and influential theories of justice from the ‘past Rawlsian’ era. Also included is the critique of the Rawlsian paradigm, especially from feminist perspectives and from the growing strand of ‘non-ideal’ theory, as well as consideration of more recent developments and methodological issues.

Law and Legal Studies Reference 2013
This series is concerned with the group of philosophers, such as Aristotle, Kant and Hegel, whose names are not immediately or primarily associated with law, but who nevertheless, have had a profound influence on legal thought. Each volume in the series deals with a major philosopher whose work has been taken up and applied to the study and critique of law and legal systems. The essays, which have been previously published in law, philosophy and politics journals and books, are selected and introduced by an editor with a special interest in the philosophers in question. The essays chosen represent the most important and influential contributions to the interpretation of the philosophers concerned and to the awareness of the relevance of their work to current legal issues.

To date there are eighteen published titles in this series.

Aquinas and Modern Law
Edited by Richard O. Brooks, Vermont Law School, USA and James Bernard Murphy, Dartmouth College, USA

This volume collects some of the best recent writings on St. Thomas’s philosophy of law. It includes a critical examination of Aquinas’s theory of the relationship between law and morality, his natural law theory, as well as the modern reformulation of his approach to natural rights. The volume shows how Aquinas understood the importance of positive law and demonstrates the modern relevance of his writings. The introduction places Aquinas’ writings in the context of modern jurisprudence and the volume features an extensive bibliography.

Augustine and Modern Law
Edited by Richard O. Brooks, Vermont Law School, USA and James Bernard Murphy, Dartmouth College, USA

‘...will prove to be a useful reference work for anyone who seeks to bridge the artificial gap that has emerged between historical scholarship in theology and law.’

Ephemides Theologicae Lovanienses

The articles in this volume reveal the contribution which St. Augustine made to the history of jurisprudence. Topics covered include Augustine’s valuable discussion of church/state relations, the law of just wars, the proper role and limits of coercion, the procreative dimensions of marriage and highlight the little recognized Augustinian contributions to the field of modern hermeneutics. The volume also features a definitive bibliography of works on Augustine and the law.

Hume and Law
Edited by Ken Mackinson, Robert Gordon University, UK

This volume is the first collection of essays in English to focus on Hume’s legal ideas and it celebrates the diversity of Hume’s contributions to jurisprudence. Topics are as varied as legal causation, theories of punishment and of property, contract, and legal obligation. Hume’s notorious assertion of the artificiality of justice is discussed and the articles are supplemented by a bibliography of law-related articles on Hume. The juxtaposing of these topics brings out the coherence of the theory that underlies them, anchoring law firmly in Hume’s overall epistemology and empiricist methodology.

Rawls and Law
Edited by Thom Brooks, Newcastle University, UK

This volume is the first work of its kind to publish in one place the most influential essays on the leading political philosopher John Rawls (1921–2002). The collection features articles on a wide range of subjects and informs scholars and students coming to the study of Rawls’s work for the first time of the importance and complexity of Rawls’s ideas, and sheds light on how these ideas might be further improved and applied.

THE LIBRARY OF ESSAYS ON ANTITRUST AND COMPETITION LAW

Series Editors: Rosa Greaves, University of Glasgow, UK and University of Oslo, Norway, Sandra Marco Colino, Chinese University of Hong Kong, S.A.R. People’s Republic of China and Jonathan Galloway, University of Newcastle, UK

Antitrust and competition law have grown dramatically in importance and significance over the last fifty years. US antitrust law has been the principal source of inspiration for jurisdictions wishing to introduce regulation to control cartels and monopolization, and antitrust regulation has now been adopted in more than 120 countries. The significance of this ‘new’ field of law continues to grow as more and more antitrust cases are brought to the courts in Europe and the US, and with operators becoming increasingly inventive.

Each of the three volumes in this series focuses on a distinct area of economic activity affected by antitrust laws: cartels and anti-competitive agreements; dominance and monopolization; and mergers and acquisitions. The selected essays cover the legal, economic and policy issues relating to attempts to regulate competition and provide insight into legal issues which have proven to be particularly relevant and contentious over the years.

This series brings together the best of the extensive literature that has been published in this fast-moving field in recent years, and is an invaluable resource for both students and lecturers.

The three volumes in this series are:
- Volume I: Cartels and Anti-Competitive Agreements
- Volume II: Dominance and Monopolization
- Volume III: Mergers and Acquisitions

Cartels and Anti-Competitive Agreements

Volume I

Edited by Sandra Marco Colino, Chinese University of Hong Kong, S.A.R. People’s Republic of China

This volume brings together leading articles on the regulation of joint conduct under competition law on both sides of the Atlantic. The articles discuss the general theoretical framework that has influenced the evolution of the law and policy; cover the most relevant practical developments; provide contrasting doctrinal views and pay particular attention to the main schools of thought that have influenced antitrust on the US and the EU, and are representative of the leading discussions in the course of antitrust history.

Dominance and Monopolization

Volume II

Edited by Rosa Greaves, University of Glasgow, UK and University of Oslo, Norway

This volume selects articles on antitrust and competition law as tools for understanding how this law is applied to unilateral conduct which is harmful to the consumer and to the competitiveness of the market. The articles examine the meaning of dominance and monopolisation; consider the various debates on pricing and non-pricing conduct; and discuss conflicts regarding the exercise of intellectual property rights by powerful undertakings, particularly in the context of the new economies.

Mergers and Acquisitions

Volume III

Edited by Jonathan Galloway, Newcastle University, UK

This volume explores the competition concerns arising out of mergers and acquisitions; the reasons for merger control and the fundamental options that face all jurisdictions intent on implementing an effective merger control regime. The chosen articles mainly, but not exclusively, focus on the US and EU, and several adopt a cross-disciplinary approach encompassing law, political science and economics. The volume acts as a guide through the development of merger control law, policy and scholarly thought and includes commentary on each of the key stages of any effective merger control regime.

The first volume discusses how proprietary notions increasingly dominated copyright legal principles, with consequences for information dissemination in modern times. It covers the period up to 1850, and begins with extracts from Roman law and early Christian and medieval teaching on ownership.

The second volume reproduces writings on figures as diverse as Karl Marx, Victor Hugo, Charles Dickens and Mark Twain, and bodies such as the US Congress. Extracted material charts the development of an international system of copyright regulation, and the growth, in the 20th century, of copyright industries benefiting from new copyright laws.

The third and final volume shows how, since 1950, the growth of copyright regulation has followed, and enabled, the extraordinary economic growth of the entertainment, broadcasting, software and communications industries. The articles focus principally on the digital age, examining how copyright regulation is likely to affect goals of dissemination and access.

The three volumes in this series are:

• Volume I: The Scope and Historical Context
• Volume II: Application to Creative Industries in the 20th Century
• Volume III: Copyright in the 21st Century

Copyright Law
Volume I: The Scope and Historical Context
Edited by Benedict Atkinson, Queensland University of Technology, Australia and Brian Fitzgerald, Australian Catholic University, Australia

The theme of this collection of published essays is the growth of proprietary notions which increasingly dominated copyright legal principles and consequently affected information dissemination in modern times. The volume covers the period up to 1850, and includes essays on a broad range of subjects ranging from ownership perspectives from Roman law, early Christian and medieval teachings to the beginnings of the modern system of copyright regulation in Britain and the US.

Copyright Law
Volume II: Application to Creative Industries in the 20th Century
Edited by Benedict Atkinson, Queensland University of Technology, Australia and Brian Fitzgerald, Australian Catholic University, Australia

This collection of essays charts the development of an international system of copyright regulation and the growth, in the 20th century, of copyright industries benefiting from new copyright laws. Articles cover key copyright cases in the US and UK, refer to the writings of figures as diverse as Marx, Victor Hugo, Charles Dickens and Mark Twain, and consider whether copyright law developed to encourage information dissemination or enable producers to control the supply of information for super profit.

Intellectual Property Law and History
Edited by Steven Wilt, University of Connecticut, USA

THE INTERNATIONAL LIBRARY OF ESSAYS IN LAW AND SOCIETY

Intellectual property has become a dominant feature of our knowledge based economy in recent years, but how has property rights in intangible items developed? This book brings together articles, written by leading experts in the field, which trace United States intellectual property from an historical perspective and show how an extensive framework for the regulation of knowledge emerged in the modern period. Diverse in their methodological approach, the essays examine a wide range of regimes, including trade secrets, trademark, copyright, and patent law.
