Hospital Chaplaincy in the Twenty-first Century
The Crisis of Spiritual Care on the NHS
SECOND EDITION
Christopher Swift, Leeds Metropolitan University, UK
EXPLORATIONS IN PRACTICAL, PASTORAL AND EMPIRICAL THEOLOGY

Review of the first edition:

‘With the NHS facing more and more calls on its resources from an ageing population, chaplains do need to follow Swift’s advice. This book should help them gain new confidence in the value of their important ministry.’

Church of England

This book charts the changing role of hospital chaplains and examines through detailed case studies the realities of practice and the political debates which either threaten or sustain the service. This second edition includes a new introduction and updated material throughout to present fresh insights and research about chaplaincy, including in relation to New Atheism and the developing debate about secularism and religion in public life.

Includes 6 b&w illustrations

Theology and California
Theological Refractions on California’s Culture
Edited by Fred Sanders, Biola University, USA and Jason S. Sexton, California State University, USA

‘This volume... is an ambitious undertaking to bring theology into the conversation of California – what it was, what it is, and what it will become … Theology and California is an excellent launching point for further theological work about California and the diversity of Californian experiences. It heads us in the right direction by asking the right questions.’

Russell M. Jeung, San Francisco State University, USA

Californians Fred Sanders and Jason Sexton assemble leading voices and specialists both from within and without California for engagement with California’s influential culture. Leading theologians and cultural critics such as Richard J. Mouw, Paul Louis Metzger and Fred Sanders, are included alongside leading specialists in film studies and cultural critique, theological anthropology, missiology, sociology and history.

Taking Stock of Bonhoeffer
Studies in Biblical Interpretation and Ethics
Stephen J. Plant, University of Cambridge, UK

‘This fine collection of essays shows both the variety of important subjects that Dietrich Bonhoeffer touched on and the sensitive interpretation of such topics that Bonhoeffer-scholar Stephen Plant provides for both academia and general readership. A rich encounter with almost three decades of thorough Bonhoeffer research by the author.’

Ralf K. Wüstenberg, Universität Flensburg, Germany and University of Cambridge, UK

This collection makes accessible Plant’s distinctive perspective on Bonhoeffer’s theology, in particular on the key themes of biblical hermeneutics, ethics, and the intimate connections Bonhoeffer discerns between them.

Between the Image and the Word
Theological Engagements with Imagination, Language and Literature
Trevor Hart, University of St Andrews, UK

‘This is a work of serious and profound theological reflection which takes entirely seriously – as theology itself all too often fails to do – the place of the imagination in religious thought and life. While rooted in a constant return to the Christological, it ranges over wide sea of theological themes and theologians, at the same time bringing into the conversation creative writers such from Dorothy Sayers to J.R.R. Tolkien and Shusaku Endo. The relationship between Christian theology and the arts is ever shifting and creative and Professor Hart’s work is a major contribution to that on-going and lively dialogue.’

Love, Drugs, Art, Religion
The Pains and Consolations of Existence
Brian R. Clack, University of San Diego, USA

‘A sensitive and wide-ranging exploration of the human condition. Clack’s sustained philosophical reflection on human transience is rich in reference and informed by powerful literary and psychoanalytic insights.’

John Cottingham, University of London, UK and University of Reading, UK

In this genuinely interdisciplinary work, Clack breaks new ground by using detailed explorations of the phenomena of drug-use, romantic love and the enjoyment of art in order to throw light on the meaning and nature of religion. This book will be vital reading for anyone concerned with the fundamental questions of religious belief, the psychoanalytic approach to culture, or simply the unavoidable existential problems lying at the very heart of human life.

Faith, Hope and Poetry
Theology and the Poetic Imagination
Malcolm Guite, University of Cambridge, UK

‘Malcolm Guite, in this wide-ranging and original study, helps us see how poetry is – if we let ourselves be drawn in and shaped by it – a means of making connections with the fundamental way things are, and so too a way of connecting with a God who is himself a pattern of ‘connection’ as Trinity, open to share the divine reality with created life. Here are materials for a profound theology of the imagination, developed in dialogue with writers both familiar and unfamiliar, beautifully combining close reading with wide horizons.’

The Most Revd Dr Rowan Williams
Making Nothing Happen
Five Poets Explore Faith and Spirituality
Gavin D’Costa, University of Bristol, UK, Eleanor Nesbitt, University of Warwick, UK, Mark Pryce, Diocese of Birmingham, UK, Ruth Shelton, Emmanuel House Day Centre, UK and Nicola Slee, Queen’s Foundation for Ecumenical Theological Education, UK

‘This thoughtful, generative interaction of poets is a welcome entry into the current struggle for and with faith among us. It is clear that the long-standing prose attempts of memo and proposition produce certitude and absolutism, but not much in the way of energy or courage or wisdom. These poets are knowing in thick ways, elusive enough to invite us to move with them, and critical in ways to hint at fresh connections. In all, a welcome resource.’

Walter Brueggemann, Columbia Theological Seminary, USA

This is a conversation between five poet-theologians broadly within the Christian tradition who together form The Diviners. Each poet offers a reflection on how they understand the relation between poetry and faith and illustrating discussion with a selection of their own poems and opening up issues for deeper exploration and reflection. This book will interest poets, theologians and all those committed to the practice and nurturing of a contemplative attitude to life in which profound attention and respect are offered to words and to the creative Word at work.

Religion and Power
No Logos without Mythos
David Martin, London School of Economics, UK

‘At last, a book from a leading sociologist about the real relations between religion, politics, and violence. It sets the standard for future discussions.’
Keith Ward, Oxford University, UK

In this book David Martin argues, against Juergen Habermas, that religion and politics share a common mythic basis and that it is misleading to contrast the rationality of politics with the irrationality of religion. In contrast to Richard Dawkins (and New Atheists generally), Martin argues that the approach taken is brazenly unscientific and that the proclivity to violence is a shared feature of religion, nationalism and political ideology alike rooted in the demands of power and social solidarity.

Religious America, Secular Europe?
A Theme and Variations
Peter Berger, Boston University, USA, Grace Davie, University of Exeter, UK and Effie Fokas, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK

‘The authors of this volume interact with a wide variety of studies and works on the subject of (post-)secularization, making it an excellent introduction to the field. The reader will find plentiful statistics, anecdotes and theories which challenge assumptions most of us share owing to the former dominance of secularization theory, even in popular thought. The book does not offer a grand explanation or a comprehensive counter-theory; it goes much further in raising multiple questions than leaving the reader assured of answers. The reader will almost certainly be stimulated to think and read further on the role of religion in contemporary societies.’

Aquinas on God

The 'Divine Science' of the Summa Theologiae
Rudi te Velde, University of Tilburg, The Netherlands

ASHGATE STUDIES IN THE HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHICAL THEOLOGY

‘… an extremely original interpretation, challenging admirers and critics alike to consider whether Aquinas’s theological exposition of Christian knowledge of God is intelligible apart from his metaphysical account of reality.’

God, Mind and Knowledge

Edited by Andrew Moore, University of Oxford, UK

THE BRITISH SOCIETY FOR THE PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION SERIES

‘This fine collection of papers from a religiously diverse and international group of philosophers provides a solid sample of the topics and themes in contemporary philosophy of religion. Including established and newer scholars, the anthology covers a variety of issues, from standard concerns about the epistemology of religion to newer reflections on cognitive science. Experts in the field and those newly interested in these topics will find much to learn from and ponder in its pages.’

Alan G. Padgett, Luther Seminary, USA

The themes of God, Mind and Knowledge are central to the philosophy of religion but they are now being taken up by professional philosophers who have not previously contributed to the field. This book is a collection of original essays by eminent and rising philosophers and it explores the boundaries between philosophy of religion, philosophy of mind, metaphysics, and epistemology.

Plato’s Gods
Gerd Van Riel, Katholieke Universiteit Leuven, Belgium
ASHGATE STUDIES IN THE HISTORY OF PHILOSOPHICAL THEOLOGY
‘Van Riels thought-provoking book is a pleasure to read. His grasp of over a century of scholarship impressive, yet it does not obstruct the argument, which is always admirably clear. His discussions of Plato’s well-known texts are intelligent and nuanced, and often have an unexpected twist. Most importantly, it gives a new and powerful impetus to the important debate about Plato’s god or, as Van Riel has convinced me, gods.’

Ways of Meeting and the Theology of Religions
David Cheetham, University of Birmingham, UK
TRANSCENDING BOUNDARIES IN PHILOSOPHY AND THEOLOGY
‘An original contribution, this challenging and interdisciplinary volume offers a fresh inner architecture of the pluriform self who approaches and meets others in creative ways, conjoining but not confusing the task of inter-religious dialogue with its equally demanding precondition of intra-religious dialogue.’

Buddhism as Philosophy
An Introduction
Mark Siderits, Illinois State University, USA
ASHGATE WORLD PHILOSOPHIES SERIES
‘Favouring philosophical clarity over chronology, [Siderits] introduces the main currents of thought in the Buddhist philosophical tradition, probing their theses and arguments for inconsistencies, often offering multiple interpretations. …He exhibits a comprehensive grasp of Buddhist thought and practice as a whole and never leaves out of sight the ethical and soteriological implications and motivations of the doctrines that he discusses. His presentation has the smooth texture of explanations that have evolved during years of teaching experience.’

Global Religious Movements Across Borders
Sacred Service
Edited by Stephen M. Cherry and Helen Rose Ebaugh, both at the University of Houston, USA
ASHGATE INFORM SERIES ON MINORITY RELIGIONS AND SPIRITUAL MOVEMENTS
Exploring how religious roots are shaping ‘service movements’ – organizations that seek to aid people across political and geographic boundaries – Global Religious Movements Across Borders focuses on how religious movements establish structures to assist people with basic human needs such as food, clothing, shelter, education and health. Encompassing various faith traditions with origins in different parts of the world, the collection offers a unique discussion of the intersection between religious transnationalism and social movements.

An Introduction to Said Nursi
Life, Thought, and Writings
The Very Reverend Ian Markham, Virginia Theological Seminary, USA and Suendam Birinci Pirim
‘… a fascinating rendition of the life and thought of this important 20th century Muslim theologian. They present Nursi’s perspectives on God and scripture, spirituality and pluralism, with sensitivity, appreciation and a keen persuasion of the importance of his original contributions to Islamic perceptions of the world of nature and the realm of the divine.’

Islamophobia
Chris Allen, University of Birmingham, UK
‘This timely and accessible book rests upon many years of careful research by a scholar whose early career has been devoted to understanding and critically evaluating the complex notion of Islamophobia. It will become a standard work of reference, as well as stimulating future discussion. There are insights in Allen’s work that deserve to be appreciated by students from a variety of disciplines, as well as a more general readership.’

Being as Communion

A Metaphysics of Information

William A. Dembski, Discovery Institute, USA

ASHGATE SCIENCE AND RELIGION SERIES

‘Being as Communion is a masterpiece. Dembski’s treatment of information is deep, rich and staggeringly original, gathering together many different threads from theology, philosophy and science. In an intellectual world that prizes outrageous proposals, Dembski modestly seeks to turn the world upside down by making the case that information is more fundamental than matter or energy. He thereby illuminates the primacy of mind in the cosmos. This book is a fresh and significant threat to materialist imperialism.’

Mark Fitzmaurice, General Medical Practitioner, Australia

In Being as Communion, philosopher and mathematician William Dembski provides a non-technical overview of his work on information. Dembski attempts to make good on the promise of John Wheeler, Paul Davies, and others that information is poised to replace matter as the primary stuff of reality. With profound implications for theology and metaphysics, Being as Communion develops a relational ontology that is at once congenial to science and open to teleology in nature. All those interested in the intersections of theology, philosophy and science should read this book.

God and the Scientist

Exploring the Work of John Polkinghorne

Edited by Fraser Watts, University of Cambridge, UK and Christopher C. Knight, International Society for Science and Religion, UK

ASHGATE SCIENCE AND RELIGION SERIES

‘The reader is immediately immersed in a rich dialogue (some of it academically philosophical), as they seek to express and make sense of the faith they share, and to respond, with generous respect, to the lifetime work of Polkinghorne.’

Church Times

‘… a first class collection of essays… presents [Polkinghorne] as a creative theologian whose faith gives him the confidence to grapple with the issues science raises in very fruitful way.’

Principles of Neurotheology

Andrew B. Newberg, Thomas Jefferson University and Hospital, USA

ASHGATE SCIENCE AND RELIGION SERIES

‘As neuroscientists present more and more evidence for the claim that religious experiences and beliefs are dramatically influenced by changes in brain activity, people interested in religion (and that should be all of us) clamor for an explanation of the implications of these neuroscientific findings for religion and brain. In Principles of Neurotheology Newberg gives us a set of tools and principles that can and should guide us when we consider implications of the latest neuroscience for religion and brain. This book is consistently thought-provoking, fertile, innovative, courageous and brilliant. It is a work of maturity, of someone who has thought deeply about these issues and their life and death consequences for real people. Newberg’s Principles will stand as the founding document for the new discipline of neurotheology – a science that has come of age and is poised to revolutionize both neuroscience and theology.’

Patrick McNamara, Boston University School of Medicine, USA

‘Principles of Neurotheology is an important book, one that initiates a discussion of the theoretical and practical principles that should guide the development of this new field while also providing an overview of the current state of the research and sage insights from one who has been for a number of years deeply involved in neurotheological research.’
